Industry Veterans Launch Business Aviation Management and Consultancy Firm

Harbor Six Advisors to Focus on Clients' Operational Success

HOUSTON, TX, October 13, 2020 – Harbor Six Advisors (Harbor Six) combines the expertise of senior business aviation executives Michael Szczechowski, Donald Haloburdo, Michael Ward, Glen Gross, and David Diulus to support aircraft owners and ensure their aviation assets are exceeding their expectations, meeting best industry practices and providing insight to key performance indicators.

The best flight departments have room for improvement, and Harbor Six works to bridge the gap between hangar and headquarters. Harbor Six considers not just operational best practices, but looks deeper to include technological, managerial, and financial aspects to truly establish a best-in-class operation.

“Each of our team members has been privileged to work with some outstanding companies, providing for a diverse background, varied experience and a unique perspective, allowing us to deliver unparalleled insight and customer solutions,” stated Michael Szczechowski, Managing Partner for Harbor Six Advisors “We are business consultants with aviation expertise.”

The Harbor Six team’s experience indicates most flight departments do very well around operational best practices and technological expertise, however it is often business processes related to accounting and finance procedures that can be improved. And even if everything runs perfectly, operators commonly fall short by not providing adequate reporting of Key Performance Indicators (KPIs) evidencing they are being good stewards of the assets under their responsibility. Harbor Six provides the insight and solutions to help demonstrate the flight department is a well-run business unit.

“Harbor Six Advisors is an expert in business aircraft operations, from evaluating existing operations to placing a new aircraft into service,” said Donald Haloburdo, Associate Partner for Harbor Six Advisors. “We have had excellent engagement with the aircraft broker and OEM sales community as our services compliment theirs. While the brokers, bankers, and OEMs can do their part flawlessly, the transition of an aircraft into service, especially when establishing a new operation, is best managed by an experienced team. Our job is to ensure aircraft owners succeed, operationally and financially.”

“Businesses are operating in a challenging new environment, and it is more imperative than ever the flight department is seen as a valuable extension of the company,” added Szczechowski. “The flight department must be run like a business unit, and best-in-class operations is expected. Harbor Six Advisors can bridge the gap between hangar and headquarters, and help achieve the vision.”

Headquartered in Katy, Texas, Harbor Six Advisors is a business aviation management and consultancy firm providing operational, financial and managerial guidance to aircraft owners and responsible executives throughout North America. For more information visit www.harborsixadvisors.com.
